the Guides and Companions which they choose, or by Hazard light upon, we find by Experience, that the first Impressions they take, and Course of Action fabits, and Character, and future Behaviour. are not trained up in the Way they will certainly be trained up in the Way go; and in all Probabili vere in it, and become miserable Themselves, and mischievous to Society: which, in Event, is worfe, upon Account of both, than if they had been exposed to perish in their Infancy. On the other hand, the ingenuous Docility of Children before they have been deceived, their Distrust of themselves, and natural Deference to grown People, whom they find here fettled in a World where they themselves are Strangers; and to whom they have Recourse for Advice, as readily as for Protection; which Deference is still greater towards those who are placed over them: These Things give the justest Grounds to expect, that they may receive fuch Impressions, and be influenced to such Course of Behaviour, as will produce lasting good Habits; and, together with the Dangers beforementioned are as truly a natural Demand upon us to train them u in the way they should go, as their bodily Wants are a Demand to provide them bodily Nourishment. Brute Creatures are appointed to do no more than this last for their Offspring, Nature forming them by Instincts to the particular Manner of Life appointed them; from which they never deviate. But this is so far from being the Case of Men, that on the contrary, considering dering Communities collectively, every successive Generation is left, in the ordinary Course of Providence, to be formed by the preceding one; and becomes good or bad, tho not without its own Merit or Demerit, as this Trust is discharged or violated, chiefly in the Management of Youth.

Wis ought, doubtless, to instruct and admonish grown Persons, to restrain them from what is Evil, and encourage them in what is Good, as we are able: But this Care of Youth, abstracted from all Confideration of the parental Affection, I fay, this Care of Youth, which is the general Notion of Education, becomes a diffinct Subject, and a diffinct Duty, from the particular Danger of their Ruin, if left to themfelves, and the particular Reason we have to expect they will do well, if due Care be taken of them. And from hence it follows, that Children have as much Right to some proper Education, as to have their Lives preserved; and that when this is not given them by their Parents, the Care of it devolves upon all Persons, it becomes the Duty of all, who are capable of contributing to it, and whole Help is wanted.

THESE trite, but most important Things, implied indeed in the Text, being thus premised as briefly as I could express them, I proceed to consider distinctly the general Manner in which the Duty of Education is there laid before us: which will further shew its Extent, and further obviate the idle Objections which have been made against it. And all this together will naturally lead us to consider the Occasion and Necessity of Schools for the Education of poor Children;

and in what Light the Objections against them in particular are to be regarded united only in the income

Sono Mos might probably intend the Text for a fultable to their respective Ranks, and future Employments: but certainly he intended it for a general Admonition to educate them in Vittue and Religion, and good Conduct of themselves in their temporal Concerns. And all this together, in which they are to be educated, he calls the way they should go; i.e. he mentions it not as a Matter of Speculation, but of Practice, And conformably so this Description of the Things in which Children are to be educated, he describes Education itself: For he calls it training them up; which is a very different Thing from merely teaching them force Truths, necessary to be known or believed. It is endeavouring to form such Truths into practical Principles in the Mind, to as to render them of habimal good Influence upon the Temper and Actions, in all the various Occurrences of Life. And this is not done by bare Infruction; but by that, together with admonishing them frequently as Occasion offers; refiratining them from what is Evil, and exercifing them in what is Good. Thus the Precept of the Apostle concerning this Matter is, to bring up children in the merture and admonition of the Lard; as it were by way of Distinction from acquainting them merely with the Principles of Christianity, as you would with any common Theory. Though Education were nothing more than informing Children of fome Truths of Importance to them, relating to Religion and common Life, yet

Eph. vi. 4.

yet there would be great Reason for it, notwithstanding the frivolous Objections concerning the Dang of giving them Prejudices. But when we confider, that fuch Information itself is really the least Part of it; and that it confifts in endeavouring to put them into right Dispositions of Mind, and right Habits of Living, in every Relation and every Capacity this Confideration shews fuch Objections to be quite abfind : fince it shews them to be Objections against doing a Thing of the utmost Importance at the natural Opportunity of our doing it, Childhood and Youth; and which is indeed, properly fpeaking, our only one. For when they are grown up to Maturity, they are out of our Hands, and must be left to Themselves. The natural Authority on One Side ceases, and the Deference on the Other, "God forbid, that it should be impossible for Men to recoilect Themselves, and reform at an advanced Age : but it is in no fort in the Power of Others to gain upon them; to turn them away from what is Wrong, and enforce upon them what is Right, at that Season of their Lives, in the Manner we might have done in their Chikihood

DOUBTLESS Religion requires Instruction, for it is founded in Knowledge and Belief of fome Truths. And so is common Prudence in the Management of our temporal Affairs. Yet neither of them confift in the Knowledge or Belief even of these fundamental Truths; but in our being brought by fuch Knowledge or Belief to a correspondent Temper and Behaviour. Religion, as it stood under the Old Testament, is perpetually stiled the Fear of God : under the New

Faith

Raith in Christalia But as that Fear of God does not signify literally being afraid of Him, but having a good Heart, and leading a good Life, in Consequence of that Fear; so this Faith in Christ does not signify literally being convinced that He is the Messiah, but becoming his real Disciples, in Consequence of such Conviction of the But notated by the confequence of such Conviction of the But notated by the same and the same and

Que Religion then being thus practical, confifting in a Frame of Mind and Course of Behaviour, suitable to the Dispensation we are under, and which will bring us to our final Good; Children ought, by Edil cation, to be habituated to this Course of Behaviour, and formed into this Frame of Mind. And it must ever be remembred, that if no Care be taken to do it. they will grow up in a direct contrary Behaviour, and be hardened in direct contrary Habits. They will more and more corrupt themselves, and spoil their proper Nature; They will alienate themselves farther from Goo; and not only neglect, but trample under foot; the Means which He in his infinite Mercy has appointed for our Recovery. And upon the whole, the same Reasons which shew, that they ought to be instructed and exercised in what will render them useful to Society, secure them from the present Evils they are in Danger of incurring, and procure them that Satisfaction which lies within the Reach of human Prudence; thew likewife, that they ought to be instructed and exercised in what is suitable to the highest Relations in which we stand, and the most important Capacity in which we can be considered; in that Temper of Mind and Course of Behaviour, which Freit will secure them from their chief Evil and bring them to their chief Good, Besides that Religion is the principal Security of Mens acting a right Part in Society, and even in respect to their own temporal Happiness, all Things duly considered.

It is true indeed. Children may be taught Superfittion, under the Notion of Religiona and it is true also, that, under the Notion of Prodence, they may be educated in great Mistakes as to the Nature of real Interest and Good, respecting the present World. But this is no more a Reason for not educating them according to the best of our Judgment, than our knowing how very liable we all are to erroin other Cases, as a Reason why we should not, in those other Cases, as a coording to the best of our Judgment.

dren should be thus educated, the providing Schools to give this Education to such of them as would not otherwise have it, has the Appearance, at least at first Sight, of being one of the very best of good Works. One would be backward, methinks, in entertaining Prejudices against it, and very forward, if one had any, to lay them aside, upon being shown that they were groundless. Let us consider the whole State of the Case. For though this will lead us some little Compass, yet I chuse to do it, and the ather, because there are People who speak of Charity Schools as a new-invented Scheme, and therefore to be tooked upon with I know not what Suspicion. Whereas it will appear, that the Scheme of Charity Schools even the Part of it which is most looked upon in this Light.

dren, but also their Maintenance, with that of the other Poor, were left to voluntary Charities. But great Changes of different Sorts happening over the Nation, and Charity becoming more cold, or the Poormore numerous, it was found necessary to make some legal Provision for them. This might, much more properly than Charity Schools, be called a new Scheme.

For without question, the Education of poor Children was all slong taken Care of, by voluntary Charities; more or has a but oblighte us by Law to maintain the Poor, was new in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth. Yet, because a Change of Circumstances made it ne-cessary, its Novelty was no Reason against it. Nowin that legal Provision for the Maintenance of the Poor, mon with grown People. But this could never be fufficient for Children, because their Case always requires more than mere Maintenance; it requires that they be educated in forme proper Manner. Whereever there are Poor who want to be maintained by Charley, there must be poor Children who, belides, this, want to be educated by Charity. And whenever there began to be Need of legal Provision for the Maintenance of the Poor, there must immediately have been Need also of some particular legal Provithis not being included in what we call their Maintenance. And many whose Parents are able to maintain. them. teaching them, and do fo, may yet be utterly negle their Education. But possibly it might not at first be attended to, that the Case of poor Children was thus a Case by itself, which required its own particular Provision. Certainly it would not appear, to the Generality, so urgent an one as the Want of Food and Raiment. And it might be necessary, that a Burden so entirely new as that of a Poor-Tax was at the Time I sin speaking of, should be as light as possible. Thus the legal Provision for the Poor was first settled, without any particular Consideration of that additional Want in the Cufe of Children; as it full remains, with force any Alteration in this Respect. In the mean Time, as the Poor still increased or Charity still lessened, many poor Children were lest exposed, not to perith for want of Food, but to grow up in Society and earn every Thing that is Evil and nothing that is Good in it; and when they were grown up, greatly at a Loss in what honest Way to provide for themselves, if they could be supposed inclined to it. And larger Numbers, whole Case was not so bad as this, yet were tion. And the Evil went on increasing till it was grown to fuch a Degree, as to be quite out of the Compats of feparate Charities to remedy. At length ome excellent Persons, who were united in a Society for carrying on almost every good Work, took into Consideration the neglected Case I have been representing; and first of all, as I understand it, for up srity Schools : or however promoted them, as far their Abilities and Influence could extend. Their to remove poor Childre of the Rank in which they were born, but, kee them in it, to give them the Affiftance which their roumfrances plainly call'd for by educating them in the Principles of Religion, as well as civil Life, and likewife making some fort of Provision for their Maintenance; under which last I include Clothing them giving them flich Learning, if it is to be called by that Name, as may qualify them for some common Employment, and placing them out to it, as they grow up. These two general Designs coincide, in many Respects, and cannot be separated. For teaching the Children to read, though I have ranked it under the latter, equally belongs to both: And without some Advantages of the latter fort, poor People would not fend their Children to our Charity Schools: Nor could the poorest of all he admitted into any schools, with out being clothed in order to it. And Care is taken, that it be done in a Manner which cannot but he a Restraint upon the Children. And if this, or any Part of their Education, gives them any little Vanity, as has been poorly objected, whilft they are Children, it is caree possible but that it will have even a quite contrary Effect when they are grown up, and ever after remind them of their Rank. Yet still we find it is apprehended, that what they here learn may fet them above it.

Bur why thould People be so excreamly apprehenfive of the Danger, that poor Persons will make a perverse Use of every the least Advantage, even the being able to read, whilst they do not appear at all appro-henfive of the like Danger for themselves or their Children; in Respect of Riches or Power, how much soever; though the Danger of perverting their Advantages is furely as great, and the Pervertion itself of much greater and worse Consequence?" And by what odd Reverse of Things has it happened, that such as pretend to be diffinguished for the Love of Liberty, should be the only Persons who plead for keeping down the Poor, as one may speak; for keeping them more inferior in this Respect, and, which must be the Consequence, in other Respects, than they were in Times past? For till within a Century or two, all Ranks were nearly upon a Level as to the Learning in queftion. The Art of Printing appears to have been providentially referved till these latter Ages, and then pro-videntially brought into Use, as what was to be infrumental for the fature in carrying on the appointed Course of Things. The Alterations which this Art has even already made in the Face of the World, are not inconfiderable. By means of it, whether immediately or remotely, the Methods of carrying on Business are, in several Respects, improved, Knowledge has been Dan. xii. 4. interested, and some fort of Literature is become general. And I this be a Bleffing, we ought to let the Poor, in their Degree, there it with us. The prefent State of Things and Courfe of Providence plainly leads us to do fo. And if we do not, it is certain, how little foever it be attended to, that they will be upon a greater Diladvantage, on many Accounts, especially in populous Places, than they were in the dark Ages:

for they will be more ignorant, comparatively with the People about them, than they were then, and the ordinary Affairs of the World are now put in a Way which requires, that they should have some Knowledge of Letters, which was not the Case then. And the fore, to bring up the Poor in their former Ignorance. now this Knowledge is fo much more common and wanted, would be, not to keep them in the fame, but to put them into a lower Condition of Life than what they were in formerly. Nor let People of Rank flatter themselves, that Ignorance will keep their Inferiors. more dutiful and in greater Subjection to them : for furely there must be Danger, that it will have a contrary Effect, under a free Government such as ours, and in a diffolute Age. Indeed the Principles and Manners of the Poor, as to Virtue and Religion, will always be greatly influenced, as they always have been, by the Example of their Superiors, if that would mend the Matter. And this Influence will, I suppose, be) greater, if they are kept more inferior than formerly in all Knowledge and Improvement. But unless their Superiors of the prefent Age, Superiors, I mean, of the Middle as well as higher Ranks in Society, are greater Examples of publick Spirit, of dutiful Submiffion to Authority, human and divine, of Moderation in Divertions, and proper Care of their Families and domestick Affairs; unless, I say, Superiors of the present Age are greater Examples of Decency, Virtue and Religion, than those of former Times; for what Reason in the World is it defirable that their Example should have this greater Influence: over the Poor? On the contrary, why should not the Poor, by being taught to read, be put into a Capacity of making some Improvement in moral and religious. Knowledge, and confirming themselves in those good Principles, which will be a great Security for their following the Example of their Superiors if it be good, and some fort of Preservative against their following it if it be bad? And ferious Persons will farther observe very fingular Reafons for this amongst us; from the Discontinuance of that religious Intercourse between Paftors and People in private, which remains in Protestant Churches abroad, as well as in the Church of Rome; and from our finall publick Care and Provision for keeping up a Senfe of Religion in the lower Rank. except by distributing religious Books. For in this Way they have been affifted; and any well disposed Person may do much Good amongst them, and at a very trifling Expence, fince the worthy Society before mentioned has to greatly leffened the Price of fuch: Books. But this pious Charity is an additional Reafon why the Poor should be taught to read, that they may be in a Capacity of receiving the Benefit of it. Vain indeed would be the Hope, that any thing in this World can be fully secured from Abuse. For as it is the general Scheme of divine Providence to bring Good! out of Evil; fo the Wickedness of Men will, if it be possible, bring Evil out of Good. But upon the whole, Incapacity and Ignorance must be favourable to Error and Vice; and Knowledge and Improvement contribute, in due Time, to the Destruction of Impiety as well as Superstition, and to the general Prevalence of perhaps be thought too remote from the prefent Occafion. It is more obviously to the Purpose of it to obfave, that Reading, Writing and Accounts, are useful, and, whatever Cause it is owing to, would really now be wanted in the very lowest Stations: And that the Trustees of our Charity Schools are fully convinced of the great Fitness of joining to Instruction easy Labour, of some Sort or other, as full as it is practicable, which they have already been able to do in some of them.

The same arrived at a fit Age for it; this must be approved by every one, as it is putting them in a Way of Industry under domestick Government, at a Time of Life, in some Respects, more dangerous than even Childhood. And it is a known Thing, that Care is taken to do it in a Manner which does not set them, above their Rank: though it is not possible always to do it exactly as one would with. Yet, I hope it may be observed without Offence, if any of them happen to be of a very weakly Constitution, or of a very distinguished Capacity, there can be no impropriety in placing these in Employments adapted to their particular Cases; though such as would be very improper for the Generality.

ticular Cales; though such as would be very improper for the Generality.

But the principal Design of this Charity is totale-cate poor Children in such a Manner, as has a Tendency to make them good, and useful, and contented, whatever their particular Station be. The Care of this is greatly neglected by the Poor a nor truly is it.

is expected from them. And if it were as profiteable to provide Charity Schools, which should supply this sameful Neglect in the Rich, as it is to supply the like, though more excusable, Neglect in the Poor, I should think certainly, that Both ought to be done for the same Reasons. And most People, I hope, will think so too, if they attend to the Thing I am speaking of; which is the moral and religious Part of Education; what is equally necessary for all Ranks, and prevously wanting in all. Yet in this Respect the four must be greatly upon a Disadvantage, from the Nature of the Case, as will appear to any one who will consider it.

For if poor Children are not sent to School, several Years of their Childhood of course pass away in Identic and Loitering. This has a Tendency to give them, perhaps a sceble Liftlesness, perhaps an headstrong Proligatencia of Mind; certainly an Indisposition to proper Application as they grow up, and an Aversion showards, not only to the Restraints of Religion, but to those which any particular Calling, and even the Nature of Society, require. Whereas Children kept to fasted Orders, and who many Hours of the Day as in Employment, are by this Means habituated, both to fabrait to those who are placed over them, and to govern Themselves; and they are also by this Means papered for Industry, in any Way of Life in which they may be placed. And all this holds abstracted from the Consideration of their being taught to read; without which, however, it will be impracticable to employ Reason for it before intentioned. Now several poor People cannot, others will not be at the Expence of sending their Children to School, i And let me add, that such as can and are willing, yet if it be very intentioned to them, ought to be eased of it, and the Burden of Children made as light as may be to their poor. Parents, and a selection between the sending their poor.

CONSIDER next the Manner in which the Children of the Poor, who have vicious Parents, are brought up, in Comparison with other Children whose Parents are of the same Character. The Children of dissolute Men of Fortune may have the Happiness of not see ing much of their Parents. And this, even though they are educated at Home, is often the Cafe, by means of a customary Distance between them, which cannot be kept amongst the Poor. Nor is it impossible, that a rich Man of this Character, desiring to have his Children better than himself, may provide them such an Education as may make them so, without his having any Restraint or Trouble in the Matter. And the Education which Children of better Rank must have, for their Improvement in the common Accomplish ments belonging to it, is of course, as yet, for the most Part, attended with some Sort of religious Education. But the Poor, as they cannot provide Persons to educate their Children; so from the Way in which they live together in poor Families, a Child must be an Eye and Ear-witness of the worst Part of his Parents Talk and Behaviour. And it cannot but be expected, that his own will be formed upon it. For as Example in employ general neral has very great Influence tipon all Persons pecially Children, the Example of their Parents is of uthority with them, when there is nothing to balance on the other Side. Now take in the Supposition at these Parents are dissolute, profigute People; then, over and above giving their Children no Sort of good instruction and a very bad Example, there are more ireftly instruct and encourage them, besides letting hem ramble abroad wherever they will, by which, of ourse, they learn the very same Principles and Maners they do at Home. And from all their Things gether, fuch poor Children will have their Characte and to Vice, by their whole Bulines it is to re rain them from it. They will be disciplined and ined up in it. This furely is a Cafe which ought to ave some publick Provision made for it. If it can't ave an adequate one, yet fuch an one as it can a union. But in reality, though there Thould be no more arents of this Character amongs the Poor, in Proportion, than amongst the Rich, the Case which I ave been putting will be far from being uncommon. Now notwithstanding the Danger, to which the Children of fuch wretched Parents cannot but he exposed, in from what they see at Home; yet by instilling into them the Principles of Virtue and Religion at School and placing them foon out in fober Families, there is Ground to hope, they may avoid those ill Courses, and escape that Ruin, into which, without this Care, they would almost certainly run. I need not add how much greater Dyne

Children who have religious Parents will do well.
For fisch Parents, besides setting their Children a good.
Reample, will likewise repent and ensorce upon them, at Home, the good instructions they receive at School.
Arran all, we find the World continues very corrupt. And it would be miraculous indeed, if Charity Schools alone thould make it otherwise for if they mould make even all who are brought up in them Proof against its Corruptions. The Truth is, every. Method that can be made use of to prevent or reform the bad Manners of the Age, will appear to be of less Effect, in proportion to the greater Occasion there is: for it. As Cultivation, though the most proper that can be, will produce less Fruit, or of a worse Sort, in a bad Climate than in a good one. And thus the Character of the common People, with whom these Children are to live, in the ordinary Intercourse of Business and Company, when they come out into the World, may more or less defeat the good Effects of their Education. And so likewise may the Character of Men of Rank, under whose Influence they are to live. But whatever Danger may be apprehended from either or both of thefe, it can be no Reason why we should not endeavour, by the likeliest Methods we can, to better the World, or keep it from growing worfe. The good Tendency of the Method before us is unquestionable. And I think myfelf obliged to add, that upon a Comparison of Parishes where Chariby Schools have been for a confiderable Time established, with neighbouring ones, in like Situations, which have have had none, the good Effects of them, as I am very credibly informed, are most manifest. Notwithstanding I freely own, that it is extreamly difficult to make the necessary Comparisons in this Case, and form a Judgment upon them. And a Multitude of Circumstances must come in to determine, from Appearances only, concerning the politive Good which is produced by this Charity, and the Evil which is prevented by it; which last is full as material as the former, and can scarce be estimated at all. But furely there can be no Doubt, whether it be useful or not, to educate Children in Order, Virtue, and Religion. However, fuppole, which is yet far from being the Case, but supnote it should feem, that this Undertaking did not answer the Expence and Trouble of it, in the civil or colitical Way of confidering Things. What is this to Persons who profess to be engaged in it, not only upon mere civil Views, but upon moral and christian Ones | We are to do our Endeavours to promote Virme and Religion amongst Men, and leave the Success to God: The Defigns of his Providence are answered by these Endeavours, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear; i.e. whatever be the Success of them: And the least Success in such Endeavours is a great and valuable Effect .

FROM these foregoing Observations, duly considered, it will appear, that the Objections which have been

made against Charity Schools, are to be regarded in the fame Light with Objections against any other Things which are necessary; for Instance, against providing for the Sick and the aged Poor. Objections in this Cafe could be confidered no otherwise than merely as Warnings of some Inconvenience which might accompany such Charity, and might, more or less, be guarded against, the Charity itself being still kept up; or as Proposals for placing it upon some better Foot. For though, amidst the Disorders and Imperfections in all human Things, these Objections were not obviated, they could not however possibly be understood as Reasons for discontinuing such Charity; because thus understood, they would be Reasons for leaving necessi-tous People to perish. Well disposed Persons therefore will take Care, that they be not deluded with Objections against this before us, any more than against other necessary Charities; as though such Objections were Reasons for suppressing them, or not contributing to their Support, unless we can procure an Alteration of That to which we object. There can be no posfible Reasons for leaving poor Children in that immi-nent Danger of Ruin, in which many of these must be left, were it not for this Charity. Therefore Ob-jections against it, cannot, from the Nature of the Case, amount to more than Reasons for endeavouring, whether with or without Success, to put it upon a right and unexceptionable Foot, in the particular Respects objected against. And if this be the Intention of the Objectors, the Managers of it have shewn themselves remarkably ready to second them: for they have shewn even made even a Docility in receiving Admonitions of any thing thought amis in it, and Proposals for rendring it more compleat. And, under the Influence of this good Spirit; the Management of it is really improving a particularhy in greater Endeavours to introduce Manufactures into these Schools; and in more particular Care to place the Children out to Employments in which they are most wanted, and may be most serviceable, and which are most suitable to their Ranks. But if there be any thing in the Management of them, which some particular Perfors think should be altered, and others are of a contrary Opinion, these Things must be referr'd to the Judgment of the Publick, and the Determination of the Publick complied with. Such Compliance is an effential Principle of all charitable Affociations; for without it they could not subside at all: and by charitable Affociations, Multitudes are put in mind to do Good, who otherwise would not have thought of it; and infinitely more Good may be done, than poffibly can by the separate Endeavours of the same Number of charitable Persons. Now he who resules to help forward the good Work before us, because it is not conducted exactly in his own Way, breaks in upon that general Principle of Union; which those who are Friends to the Indigent and diffressed Part of our Fellow-Creatures, will be very cautious how they do in any Case: but more especially will they beware, how they break in upon that necessary Principle in a Case of so great Importance as is the present. For the Publick is as much interested in the Education of poor Children, as in the Preservation of their Lives. This laft.

last, I observed, is legally provided for. The former, is less amongst other Works of Charity, neglected by many who care for none of these Things, and to be carried on by such only as think it their Concern to the doing Good. Some of You are able, and in a Situation, to affish in it in an aminent Degree, by being trustion, to affish in it in an aminent Degree, by being Trustees, and overlooking the Management of these Schools; or in different Ways countenancing and recommending them; as well as by contributing to their Maintenance: Others can affish only in this latter Way. In what Manner and Degree then it belongs to You, and to me, and to any particular Person to help it forward, let us all consider seriously, not for one another, but each of us for himself.

And may the Bleffing of Almighty God accompany this Work of Charity, which He has put into the Hearts of his Servants, in Behalf of these poor Children: that being now trained up in the may they should go, when they are old they may not depart from it. May He, of his Mercy, keep them fafe amidst the innumerable Dangers of this bad. World, through which they are to pass, and presented them unto his heavenly Kingdom.

Christian Knowledge, both at Home and in other Parts of the World, by the best Methods that should offer. They are therefore a Society diffinct from the Corporation, and known by the Name of the Society for Promoting Christian Unowledge.

THEIR principal Methods were the fame as they had been before. The FIRST, to procure and encourage the creeting of CHARITY-SCHOOLS, in all Parts of the Kingdom; and that those Schools might answer the true Purpoles for which they were erected, the Society has not been wanting in their Correspondence (with such of their Members as have been concern'd in their Support and Management) to recommend at all Times, that, together with Religious and Uleful Instruction, Care should be taken, and all proper Means used, to inure the Children of the Poor to Industry and Labour, so that they may become good Christians, loyal, and useful Subjects: and be willing, as well as fit to be employ d, not only in Trades or Services, but also in Husbandry, Navidenos. gation,

With these Views the Society printed and dispersed such a Set of Rules for the good Order and Government of these schools, as had been approved of by the Arch-bishops and Bishops, who directed, that the same should be observed within their respective Dioceses: But what Care they have taken, and what they have done in these Particulars, will appear from No II, in vision but the Appendix a principle and ANOTHER Method was to difperfe, both at Home and Abroad, Bibles, Prayer-Books, and divers Sorts of Religious Tracts; and accordingly they have, by the Affiftance of their Members, dispersed several Hundred Thousands of them, in such Manner and in fuch Places, as they have Reason to hope has tended to the great Increase of the Knowledge and Practice of our holy Religion. These Books and Tracts (of which there is a Catalogue in the Appendix, No III.) are to be had by their own Members on the following Terms: Such as are Bound, at the prime Cost in Sheets; what are not Bound, at half the prime Cost; the Society defraying the Expence of the other Half, as also that of Binding, in the former Article, out of their own Fund.

THESE are the General Defigns of this Society: and though their certain Income towards supporting them be but fmall, yet they have hitherto been enabled by their own Annual Subscriptions, and the Legacies or other casual Benefactions of well disposed Persons, to raise a Fund sufficient to carry them on successfully from year to year at a very considerable Expence: And they still trust to the Blessing of GOD, and the Zeal of their Members, that fuch good Works shall never fail to prosper in their

bers to use their utmost Endeavours that poor Children may be bound out Apprentices to that Business, which would silence one of the most popular Clamburs that has been raised against Charity Schools. This Concern therefore, which I country, is particularly recommended by the Society to all their Members.

I now these Extrass is will appear, how careful this Society has always been to obviate the common Objections made against the Charity Schools, that they only breed up Children in Idleness and Pride; and it must not be omitted, that as early as the Year 1712, they particularly recommended, I have however these Children are disposed of it will be very necessary beforehand to teach them "That however these Children are disposed of it will be very necessary beforehand to teach them that great Lesson of true Humilay, which our "Saviour has prescribed to all that will be his Disciples; less the Advanages they receive from a "pious Education should incline them to put too great a Value upon themsalves; and therefore than the Masters be often put in mind of guarding the Children under their Care, as much as possible, against such dangerous Conceits; and in "order therefore in order there are carefully "order thereunto, to instruct them very carefully "in the Ducies of Servants, and Submission to

And knowing that it is of the highest Importance to the Welfare of the Charley Schools, to remove all Occasion of Complaint against them as Nurseries of Disafection to the Government, They acquainted their Members in Town and Country, "That his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury having heard some Complaints against the Con"dust of certain Teachers in these Schools, on this G Head, did, in 1716, write a Letter to the Trustees of the Schools in and about London, earnestly exhorting them rigorously to animadocert upon all, whether Children or Leathers, who either appears or Juster them to appear at any time in publick, to agreen the Government, and hear a Part in shose Tumults and Rives, which are so great a Scandal, as well as Prejudice, to the good Order and Peace of the Realm. And likewist, if there he any Gatechisms or Institutions raught in any of these Schools, that meddle with political or pers Principles, that they ought immediately to be thrown a stade, as permicious to the original Design of these pieus Nurseries.

Some time after this, his Grace, in a particular manner, recommended it to the Trustees of the Charity Schools in and about London; To require all the Masters and Mistresses under their Diagrees of the rection, not only to take the Oaths to the Go-
